

If you want to check out Fulton County sometime, here is a rough map of the "Lower Hickman Bottoms" near Reelfoot NWR where many of the good birding spots are. Most of the marked areas are wetlands or transient ponds and require some water for the birds to be there, but they do remain wet much of the year. It's a great area for waterfowl in the winter and for migrating shorebirds in the spring and fall. This map has some of the better areas marked with red circles and should get you started, but the whole area is nice to explore, and you can also drive along the river levee on Sutton Road.
